JAYNE TORVILL AND CHRISTOPHER DEAN SPECIAL

A Thames Television production. Transmission details are for the Central region. Duration: 50 minutes.

An hour of non-stop action from the greatest-ever ice dance pair. Torvill and Dean's searing interpretation of Bolero at the championships in Ottawa last March won them their fourth consecutive world title, but their earlier performances are just as memorable. Their rock roll 'exhibition of 1981 helped inspire the Original Set Pattern rock 'n' roll routine in the 1983 world championships in Helsinki. You can see both performances in this programme, which also contains previously unscreened highlights from the last four years of their amateur career.

Introduced by Simon Reed; executive producer Bob Burrows; produced and directed by John Davis.

With a Smile and a Song, Julie opens the door to a world of fantasy, where film unfolds to mix magically with the settings in a glittering tribute to the musical delights of Walt Disney.

Snow White, Pinocchio, Dumbo and Fantasia find new life through Julie and her guests. In a songful scene from Snow White, Julie introduces the voice of the cartoon princess Adriana Caselotti, who was chosen from hundreds of Hollywood hopefuls when the film was made 34 years ago.

Teen-star of the Forties Donald O'Connor plays the toymaker to Julie's puppet Pinocchio with I've Got No Strings. But Donald really comes into his own as Donald—wait for it ! —Duck, making the miserable most of his marriage to one of Cinderella's ugly sisters, played by Alice Ghostley.

Music director Nelson Riddle; choreography by Tony Charmoli; produced by Nick Vanoff; directed by Bill Davis.

Special Christmas edition with grown-ups taking part.

When it returned in 1963, the children's version of the programme was billed in TV Times as CRISS CROSS QUIZ, perhaps because it was no longer considered necessary to distinguish it from the version for adults, which hadn't been on air since 1961. This continued until 04.06.1964 after which it reverted to its more familiar title – a result, we assume, of the decision to bring back the series for grown-ups too.

The Christmas edition of Potty Pictorial —part of tonight's Ken Dodd Show —has been compiled by a dedicated group of derriere-garde film technicians and will be seen through the curtsey of Knotty Ash Television (which unusually broadcasts on Chanel 5). Doddy takes you on several rambles through his fantasyland and presents, in the course of one dissertation, his version of a Dickensian Christmas. He also takes his tonsils for a splash in ' The River.' In sketches he is Joined by Graham Stark, Patricia Hayes, and John Laurie, The accident-prone ventriloquist Neville King (one of the hits of this year's Royal Variety Show) gives vent to his feelings as he wrestles once again with fate and his dummy.

Finally here Is a special message: ' We hope that by the time the show is on the air everybody will be settled down comfortably, choc-full of plumsiousness. and be having a very merry Ticklemas. Yours toothfully, Kenneth Dodd, Squirrel of Knotty Ash. P.S. Don't forget to have a Cool Yule and a Gear Year.'

Written by Ken Dodd and Eddie Braben; music arranged by Ken Jones; orchestra directed by Ken Jones; choreography by Irving Davies; produced and directed by Michael Hurll.

With Sandie Shaw, Graham Stark, John Laurie, Neville King, Irving Davies, David Mahlowe, Patricia Hayes, The Irving Davies Dancers, The Michael Sammes Singers.

LADY BE GOOD

A BBC Leeds production for BBC 2. Transmission details are for BBC 2. Duration: 55 minutes.

Fifty years after she first graced the ballrooms of wartime Britain with her allgirl dance band, Ivy Benson is a show-business legend. The talented bandleader and her glamorous musicians broke new ground for women when they joined the bigband big-time and became favourites of HM Forces. The girls had their audiences queuing for dates as well as for dancing. Yet Ivy had to endure the prejudice of men dance band musicians whose hackles rose whenever they heard her signature tune: Lady Be Good.

Film editors Bob Geoghegan and Sarah Flint; produced by Alan Kassall.

LAPLAND

Commissioned by BBC 1. Transmission details are for BBC 1.

It's Christmas and hearts must be warmed. That's the rule. So prepare to have that vital organ not just warmed but barbecued as we join the tumultuous Lewis clan on a trip to, yes, Lapland, to visit the actual Santa Claus. They are a noisy, aggressive bunch, headed by widowed matriarch Eileen, who start arguing on the plane before the holiday has even begun. And the squabbles continue as they squash into a tour bus for horrible organised trips in festive hats led by a ghastly guide, Jingle Jill.

Written by Michael Wynne; produced by Rosemary McGowan; directed by Catherine Morshead.

THE LAST GOON SHOW OF ALL

A BBC production for BBC 1. Transmission details are for BBC 1. Duration: 40 minutes.

A unique occasion recorded by outside broadcast cameras during the BBC Anniversary celebrations earlier in the year, when a special edition of radio's most famous comedy show took place before a distinguished audience at the Camden Theatre in London. Pit your wits against Neddy Seagoon (dressed in a floral cretonne frock), as in company with Constabule Sellers he poses two riddles. Firstly ' I say, I say, I say . . how do you start a pudding race? ' And secondly: ' Can a lady with a wooden leg change a pound note? '

Written by Spike Milligan; produced and directed by Douglas Hespe.

LEN GOODMAN'S BIG BAND BONANZA

Commissioned by BBC 4. Transmission details are for BBC 4. Duration: 60 minutes.

Forget punk, rap and deathcore metal: swing is the toughest music around. The men and women of the Second World War defeated the Nazis, and the music of Glenn Miller was how they kept their spirits up. The Big Band sound was so potent, Hitler tried to ruin it with his own propaganda versions: "Let's go bombing, oh let's go bombing. Let's go shelling, where they're dwelling, Let's shell Churchill's women and children too-oo." It didn't work. As one contributor to this toe-tapping documentary puts it, the Nazis "underestimated British irony". Len points out that even after the war, big bands kept fi ghting for relevance in a changing musical culture, from savvy bandleaders like Ted Heath through "illegal jiving" on the dance fl oor to the onslaught of the Beatles. The fact it still thrives is a testament to Big Band's adaptability and sheer joy. Plus, the tunes can't be beat. Strike up the band and let's dance like it's 1949.

19.12.2011 Barbra HD/DB / HDC

A frail schoolgirl obsessed with Barbra Streisand has trouble turning male heads. Her idea of chat-up involves bopping a boy over the head with her breathalyser. But this is no ordinary schoolgirl; it's a teen Jane Horrocks. In this magical micro-comedy the 70s are lovingly re-created (with help from Leo Sayer and Middle of the Road) and there's a joyous twist in the tale.

Written by Nick Vivian; designed by Kem White; executive producers Lucy Lumsden, Stephen Fry, Gina Carter, Saskia Schuster and Zoe Rocha; produced by Mike Elliott; directed by Paul Norton Walker.

With Sophie Wright (Jane Horrocks), Jane Horrocks (Hairdresser), Katy Clayton (Tracy), Ciara Baxendale (Patsy), James Ainsworth (Andrew), Charlie Kenyon (Lad), Claire Greenaway (Margaret).

19.12.2011 Your Face HD/DB / HDC

Harry Hill's flashbacks keep clashing with those of his younger self. Utterly daft, utterly fantastic, it's full of trademark low-fi effects that consistently ramp up the laughs.

Written by Harry Hill; produced by Charlie Leech; directed by Harry Hill.

With Harry Hill, Jude Wright (Harry Junior), Joshua Oakes-Rogers (Teen Harry), Hélène Patarot (May Sung), Sarah Gatenby-Howells (Young Sarah Ferguson), Bridget Christie (Air Hostess), Junior Simpson (Tribesman).

20.12.2011 The Curious Incident of the Dog in the Daytime HD/DB / HDC

Alan finds himself lumbered with his father's Alsatian after a messy run-in with the next-door neighbour's Sheltie. John Sessions makes a cameo playing a fabulously poker-faced canine psychiatrist as Davies and dog bury their differences.

Written by Alan Davies and Oliver Lansley; executive producers Gina Carter and Zoe Rocha; produced by Mike Elliott; directed by Oliver Lansley.

With Alan Davies, John Sessions (Psychiatrist), Benjamin Whitrow (Dad), Felicity Montagu (Mrs Peters), Ewan Bailey (Dog Instructor), Roger Ashton-Griffiths (First Magistrate), Iain McKee (Policeman), Mona Hammond (Neighbour).

20.12.2011 Shappi 4 Todd HD/DB / HDC

Shappi Khorsandi's tale is about her ten-year-old self. The only thing she has in common with her schoolmates is a whopping crush on Tucker in Grange Hill, so it should be a dream come true when he opens the Christmas fayre. If only silly young Shappi hadn't told a little white lie.

Written by Shappi Khorsandi; script editor Andrew Collins; designed by Sarah Jenneson; executive producers Lucy Lumsden, Saskia Schuster, Addison Cresswell and Andrew Beint; produced by Katherine Lannon; directed by Chris Cottam.

With Shappi Khorsandi, Paradis Farahati (Young Shappi), Oliver Johnstone (Young Todd), Gwyneth Powell (Headmistress), Faraz Khokhar (Peyvand), Nadim Sawalha (Baba Aziz), Nathalie Armin (Maman), George Spittle-McGuire (Chris), Macauley Keeper (Joe Dilly), Nicole Davies (Lucy), Eliza Newman (Carol), Cicely Giddings (Art Teacher), Paul Bazely (Hadi), Viss Elliot Safavi (Party Guest), Peyvand Khorsandi (Party Guest), Amanda Lawrence (Mrs Oliver), Todd Carty.

22.12.2011 My First Christmas Number One HD/DB / HDC

Sally Lindsay recalls her part when St Winifred's School Choir made a rather traumatic visit to the Top of the Pops studio to perform There's No One Quite like Grandma. An audience of teenagers was never going to be receptive to the sweetest song in pop.

Written by Sarah Hooper; music by Simon Lacey; designed by Jo Sutherland; executive producers Lucy Lumsden, Saskia Schuster and Sophie Clarke-Jervoise; produced by Margot Gavan Duffy; directed by Dewi Humphreys.

With Sally Lindsay, Olivia Cosgrove (Young Sally), Owen Salthouse (Young Chris), Jennifer James (Mum), Kathryn Hunt (Gran), Julia Deakin (Sister Aquinas), Lee Boardman (Reg), Steve Furst (Frank).

22.12.2011 Papaji Saves Christmas HD/DB / HDC

It is 1975, and Christmas begins joyfully for the 12-year-old Sanjeev with his dad marking up his copy of Radio Times so he doesn't miss any current affairs. But terror rules the Bhaskar home when a mouse is discovered in the bathroom. It takes the visiting Papaji, Sanjeev's uncle and a man previously considered (with affection) to be both lazy and boring, to oust the rodent.

Written by Sanjeev Bhaskar; executive producers Gina Carter, Lucy Lumsden, Saskia Schuster and Zoe Rocha; produced by Mike Elliott; directed by Sanjeev Bhaskar.

With Sanjeev Bhaskar, Joshan Patel (Young Sanjeev), Seeta Indrani (Mum), Kaleem Janjua (Uncle Papaji), Nishi Malde (Sangeeta), Vincent Ebrahim (Uncle Arun), Harvey Virdi (Auntie Nimmi).

"People", said Homer Botts "become so Christmassy on Christmas Day". He had found that this was the one day of the year when people were nice to him and to each other. "Why then", he said, "can't we have a law that says every day is Christmas Day".

Written by Reuben Ship; settings by John Clements[1]; directed by John Moxey.

With David Kossoff (Charlie Crockett), Hartley Power (Mr Ferguson), Lew Davidson (Homer Botts), Estelle Brody (Mrs Botts), Kit Terrington (Arthur Botts), Evelyn Moore (Mother), Sheila Mackenzie (Angela Botts), Sheldon Lawrence (Frank Wilson), Brenda Dunrich (Mayor's Wife), Macdonald Parke (Mayor), Launce Maraschal (Mr Thorncliff), Peter Mannering (Conservative), Douglas Storm (Liberal), John Marquand (Socialist), Anita Sharp Bolster (Spinster), Bill Nagy (George Peterson), Jack Cunningham (Minister), John McLaren (Reporter), Neil McCallum (Newsreel Camerman), Maurice Lane, Vernon Morris, Paddy Edwards, Martin Wyldeck.

When ATV came on the air in the midlands they started to take this series. From 26.04.1956 their TV Times started to bill this as TELEVISION PLAYHOUSE and by 03.05.1956 the London TV Times was doing the same. It would seem quite likely that neither title was used on-screen and the titles and captions referred only to the individual play being broadcast.

LORD HAW HAW

A BBC production for BBC 1. Transmission details are for BBC 1. Duration: 50 minutes.

WILLIAM JOYCE was hanged as a traitor at Wandsworth in 1946. As Lord Haw Haw he became the radio voice of Hitler's Germany, apparently an aristocratic Englishman with a fine line in lordly sarcasm. The real William Joyce was an American who felt he was warning Britain against Communism and a 'Jewish financial conspiracy.' How did William Joyce become the most hated voice of World War II; and was the law stretched to secure his execution?

Produced by Christopher Olgiati.

27.07.1967 21:00 – 22:00	A Merry Chinese Christmas	5106	9948	R1 / 40

Winter in this play has driven Helene Harris away to the sunny warmth of Majorca, while her husband Mike (Norman Bowler) remains behind in London. Mike is due to join her for Christmas, but he has a stack of work to get through first. As his burdens are not lessened by Helene's hectoring telephone calls, he calls in a secretarial agency typist to help him to cope. Emma (Phyllis Calvert) the woman who turns up, looks rather quaint and spinsterish. But that forbidding facade is due, at some point, to crumble.

Written by Lewis Greifer; designed by Colin Andrews; produced by Rex Firkin; directed by Graham Evans.

With Phyllis Calvert (Emma), Norman Bowler (Mike), Ernst Walder (Guido), Maggie Flint (Mary), Deborah Grant (Receptionist), Susan Lefton (Girl).

An ABC production. Duration: 40 minutes.

Bob gives a Christmas party for children in his Mad Movies den. In this special edition, presenting the world's stars of slapstick comedy, you meet, once again, Charlie Chaplin, Abbott and Costello, Laurel and Hardy, Jerry Lewis, Jacques Tati, Michael Bentine and a host of other all-time laughter-makers.

Designed by Mike Perry; directed by Keith Beckett.

This one edition is not mentioned in any of Bob's paperwork so we think it might have actually been commissioned and made by ABC themselves rather than being an independent production. The TV listings magazines mention Charlie Chaplin, Abbott and Costello, Laurel and Hardy, Jerry Lewis, Jacques Tati and Michael Bentine which also suggests different fare to the usual.

The synopses included here are Bob's own. We have tried to work out the correct transmission dates for the episodes in these three series but at times it has come down to educated guesswork as the synopses in the ITV listings magazines are often vague. Where there are no tx dates it isn't that we think the edition remains unshown just that we really don't have a clue.

A Hammer Films production. Duration: 86 minutes.

Lyrics by Annie Farrow; music by Christopher Gunning; produced by Roy Skeggs; directed by John Robins.

With Doug Fisher (Larry Simmonds), Arthur Lowe (Spiros), Peter Cellier (Morris Pluthero), Patrick Newell (Sir Edmund Weir), Andria Lawrence (Miss Bird), Aubrey Morris, Rudolph Walker, Jack Smethurst, Bill Maynard, Spike Milligan, Aimi MacDonald, Bill Grundy, Michael Robbins, Norman Mitchell, Michael Ward, Julian Orchard, Bill Pertwee, Melvyn Hayes, Johnny Briggs [as Johnnie Briggs], Berry Cornish, Bill Sawyer, Mark Rogers, Corinne Skinner, Pauline Peart, Arthur Hewlett, Annie Leake.

In the world of television sitcoms, the family is often centre-stage. Comedy or drama by its very nature subverts the portrayal of norms to create suspense, drama or laughter. Sometimes the comedy is based around the conflict between parents and children, or men and women, or in this case a man and two women.

Johnnie Mortimer and Brian Cooke began their writing careers in journalism, but quickly moved into comedy when they went to work for ABC at London's Teddington Studios. They began their comedy writing at the BBC cutting their teeth on some episodes of Foreign Affairs and a Comedy Playhouse for Hughie Green, but ABC gave them their big break. Tommy Cooper, Bernard Cribbins and Ronnie Barker were the first performers to take part in their sketches, then they graduated into sitcoms and wrote Father, Dear Father.

Into its third series, one episode of Father, Dear Father saw the girls plan to leave home and Patrick misunderstands and assumes they are living with a man, in an episode entitled 'A Man About the House'. The seed of a new series was sown. In this edition it was Doug Fisher who played the man, and Doug would return as a regular in Man about the House in later years. When Father, Dear Father finished in 1973 a new Mortimer/Cooke sitcom had already been commissioned and the more well-known star Richard O'Sullivan had been hired to play Robin Tripp, the randy cookery student who finds himself unable to afford a bachelor pad.

O'Sullivan was chosen because of his star quality – he was a regular in the 'Doctor' serials and indeed would go on to become TV's highest paid comedy star winning many awards. Eventually years of good living affected his health and now he lives quietly in retirement.

The premis of Man About the House was simple. Man with no home finds a flat he can afford to rent, but he has to share it with two girls. Chrissy Plummer and Jo, played by Paula Wilcox and Sally Thomsett, were chosen to represent a brainy brunette (Chrissy) and a dumb blonde (Jo) appealing to every man's sexual fantasy. For six seasons viewers waited to find out if Robin and Chrissy would become lovers, but in the end Chrissy married Robin's brother, leaving Thames Television with the option for Robin to open a bistro called Robin's Nest.

The surprising hit of the series were the landlord and landlady downstairs – George and Mildred Roper (Brian Murphy and Yootha Joyce). Lazy, hen-pecked George, loved and equally despised by sex-starved, frustrated Mildred represented 'the parents' – disapproving and yet envious to join in the fun simultaneously. They too would go on to their own series.

In later seasons Doug Fisher would play Larry, Robin's mate and Jo's supposed 'boyfriend' allowing for plenty of jokes about couples as audiences saw Chrissy and Robin becoming closer.

At the height of its popularity in 1974, the series spawned its own feature film made by Hammer Films. It was very successful commercially and propped up the less successful horror film franchise!

Over 8,000 men sleep rough in London on park benches, in derelict houses and railway sidings. No one knows the total for the whole country; how many will spend Christmas alone this year, out of doors? These men weren't born homeless. Many of them had good jobs, a home and a family and they thought they were secure. Ending up jobless, without a roof and alone, is a gradual process, but those who've dropped to the bottom rung on the ladder say you get there almost before you know it— once things really start to go wrong. HAROLD WILLIAMSON talks to men who admit they brought it all on themselves; some who are trying to fight their way back and others who've accepted life on the dosshouse circuit at a time when hostels for homeless men are fast disappearing in property development schemes.

Reporters Jeremy James, Jeanne La Chard, John Pitman, Desmond Wilcox and Harold Williamson; report by Harold Williamson; programme editor Adam Clapham; directed by Terence O'Reilly.

MAN OF PARTS

A Scottish Television production. Transmission details are for the Scottish Television region. Duration: 25 minutes.

John Buchan-The First Lord Tweedsmuir- was born 100 years ago. Buchan was the Scottish author of unforgettable adventure stories such as The 39 Steps and Greenmantle, featuring the upperclass hero Richard Hannay. But Buchan wasn't just the writer of adventure yarns.

He was also a Governor-General of Canada, an M.P., and a man who, some say, might have stopped World War II with a special "peace plan" he devised with President Roosevelt. Buchan's also been called a vastly under-rated literary talent-the best writer since Robert Louis Stevenson. But his critics have labelled him a social climber, a snob, and a racist. So who was the real John Buchan? In the centenary year of his birth Scottish Television have produced a documentary analysing the man through his family, his friends, and his critics.

Sound Clive Wood and Gary Coleman; film editor Iain Mackenzie; executive producer Russell Galbraith; directed by Archie McArthur.

MAN OF THE DECADE

An ATV production. Transmission details are for the ATV midlands region. Duration: 52 minutes.

Screened on commercial televison in colour on the penultimate day of the 1960s, three eminent people were asked to choose the person felt to have been the man of the decade. Sociologist and anthropologist Dr Desmond Morris chose John Lennon, the broadcaster Alistair Cooke selected John F Kennedy, and the writer Mary McCarthy opted for Ho Chi Minh. Each made a 20 minute documentary to support their choice, the resulting one hour of material forming 'Man of the Decade'. The interview with John Lennon and Yoko Ono took place on 2nd December 1969 as they strolled through the grounds of Tittenhurst Park, their estate near Ascot in Berkshire. Topics discussed by Lennon include youth culture, Vietnam, peace, love, LSD, the establishment and Woodstock. He also personally selected the Beatles archive clips featured in this section of the programme.

Research John Head; film editor Stanley Staffe; camera Charles Stuart; produced by Colin Clark.

Diana Decker's character is sometimes listed as Stevie Ames. According to Harry Lee Danziger, the episodes where he has a director's credit were actually helmed by a "famous director" who he declined to name (www.78rpm.co.uk/tvs.htm).

The character Inspector Mark Saber had previously appeared in the USA on the radio and on Mystery Theatre where he was played by Tim Conway. All of these films were broadcast under the title THE VISE: MARK SABER in the USA. NFTVA elements are as per can labels, the films themselves may not have all been checked.

As the broadcast order in the UK varied from region-to-region, with one exception the order presented here matches the cataloguing order of the series' current owner.

THE MIKADO

A Thames Television production. made in association with Clerical Medical Investment Group. Transmission details are for the Central region. Duration: 110 minutes.

The English National Opera production. The Mikado is the Emperor of Japan, or so we are told in this best known of Gilbert and Sullivan's operas. In this updated version by Jonathan Miller for the English National Opera, the action takes place somewhat nearer home. Those who are accustomed to traditional productions will find the new setting gives fresh insights into an old favourite. Eric Idle's appearance as Ko-Ko, is his first in an opera — and the critics gave him rave reviews, as they did the whole of this talentedcast. The story goes: Nanki-Poo, heir to the throne of Japan, has fled from his father's court to escape the attentions of Katisha; he (Nanki-Poo) is madly in love with Yum-Yum whom he pursues disguised as a wandering minstrel; Yum-Yum, however, is engaged to Ko-Ko, the Lord High Executioner, who... But you'll have to watch it to find out the rest of the story.

Orchestra conducted by Peter Robinson; choreography by Anthony Van Laast; executive producer Ian Martin; produced for television by John Michael Phillips; produced for the stage by Jonathan Miller; directed for television by John Michael Phillips.

21.12.1958 How Mr Pastry Joined the Circus B3 / B3

Written by Richard Hearne; production by Bill Parry Jones.

The two circus ones seem to have been filmed at the same location. "Holiday" and "Ski" both involve filming in Norway which you would think meant they were shot together - except that "Holiday" says it was first shown in 1952 on Infax. RT implies they are the same episode as the billing is almost identical for its showings on 23/12/52, 30/12/53 and 29/11/54. Kaleidoscope doesn't have immediate access to PasBs from pre-1955, but we wonder if there was more than one version of the "Holiday" episode - the BBC card files don't say these are repeats. "Holiday" however is repeated on 20/12/55 and it states on that PasB that it was previously shown on 29/11/54, not mentioning the other dates (and often films for children in this era e.g. "Watch With Mother" state all previous showings on the PasB). "Holiday" and "Ski" also have similar title cards, suggesting they are linked.

Many of the 1940s appearances listed here were not productions in themselves, merely parts of a longer umbrella programme entitled FOR THE CHILDREN. From December 1946, Annette Mills and Ann Hogarth appear with a variety of puppets in FOR THE CHILDREN, but it isn't until February 1947 that Muffin is mentioned by name. A Radio Times article accompanying the 09.02.1947 broadcast makes it clear that Muffin was one of a number of puppets which had already appeared in the series, but unsurprisingly it doesn't indicate on precisely which edition(s).

A number of titles were made for markets other than the BBC. Only episodes with transmission dates can reliably be treated as BBC episodes. The BFI claim that Parthian Films made all the BBC editions but Kaleidoscope is not convinced. The BBC believe this may be the case but are not sure at what point that practice began.

These are the only ones the BBC actually have, the rest are in private hands:
MUFFIN'S TREASURE HUNT..... 02/03/52
MUFFIN GOES FISHING..... 30/03/52
MUFFIN AND THE METRONOME..... 27/04/52
MUFFIN'S FRENCH VISITOR..... 27/07/52
MUFFIN GOES ON HOLIDAY..... 03/08/52

MUFFIN IS BACK..... 06/06/54
FATHER XMAS MUFFIN..... 19/12/54
DICK MUFFINGTON AND HIS CAT.... 02/01/55
MUFFIN'S PICNIC..... RC Aug87
MUFFIN MAKES PANCAKES..... RC May98
MUFFIN'S AQUARIUM..... RC May98
MUFFIN AND THE RELUCTANT CARROT RC May98 – this is in colour
MUFFIN'S TRAVELOGUE..... RC May98 – has some colour seqs, is also very long for a Muffin episode.

A MUSICAL NATIVITY WITH JOHN RUTTER

A BBC production for BBC 2. Transmission details are for BBC 2. Duration: 60 minutes.

For many choristers, the name John Rutter is synonymous with Christmas. His music is so devotional and steeped in Christian doctrine that it's a surprise to learn he's an agnostic - or, as he describes himself here, a "bruised optimist in a very imperfect world". His gift for arrangement and tune shines out in an uplifting programme of personal favourites and his own compositions, from Nativity Carol, written at16, to his latest work (he's now a sprightly 66). Rutter's excitement for the occasion is beautifully expressed not only in interview and in his playful, darting songs, but also in sparkly and moving versions of familiar works.

Music by John Rutter.

THE NATION'S FAVOURITE CHRISTMAS SONG

A Shiver production for ITV1. Transmission details are for the Central region. Duration: 75 minutes.

They arrive in early December like a heavy snowfall of nostalgia. Some of them set your teeth on edge with a surfeit of sleighbells, others melt all resistance and deliver just the right kind of sentimental glow. Now ITV asks the vital question: which of these festive hits do we love the most? As they count down through the likes of Greg Lake's I Believe in Father Christmas and Chris Rea's Driving Home for Christmas, we get to marvel at how well Bing Crosby and David Bowie dovetailed on Little Drummer Boy, while some Spice Girls, Cliff Richard and, naturally, Noddy Holder reminisce.

NEAREST AND DEAREST

A Granada production. Transmission details are for the ATV midlands region. Usual duration: 25 minutes.

The Pledges are in a real pickle. Or, to be more precise, an antiquated North Country pickle factory.

It is the setting for Nearest and Dearest. Jimmy is Eli Pledge, a bachelor playboy with a reputation for being a middle-aged Romeo. Hylda plays Nellie, his spinster sister and pillar of the local community.

The pair, hoping to benefit from their father's will, are stunned to learn that they will receive the princely sum of £9 17s. 6d. But a clause in the will lands that pickle-factory right into their unwilling hands. Nearest and Dearest is the story of the Pledges and their problem pickle factory.

Main regular credit(s): Devised by Vince Powell and Harry Driver; music by Derek Hilton.

Main regular cast: Hylda Baker (Nellie Pledge), Jimmy Jewel (Eli Pledge), Joe Gladwin (Stan), Madge Hindle (Lily), Edward Malin (Walter).

26.12.1969	The Ghost of Picklers Past	P584/17	DB / 2"

Duration: 42 minutes.

Boxing Day at Pledge's Purer Pickles. The factory is quiet. The last consignment of special gift-wrapped gherkins for Christmas has long gone. Nellie and Eli find time to spend a few peaceful hours with the family. It is a small family circle these days and the Pledges are left with Lily and Walter, affectionately known by Eli at least as the Christmas Fairy and King Rat. But is it a good idea to hold a seance to try to get in touch with old Joshua Pledge who has been dead these two years? Is Lily really a medium? Can the ghosts of picklers long departed really roam the factory? Is dad trying to get in touch with Nellie from that great pickle factory in the sky? And, for that matter, what was that noise? It couldn't be the sound of phantom clog-steps, could it?

Written by Tom Brennand and Roy Bottomley; designed by Eric Deakins; directed by Bill Podmore.

With Freddie Rayner (Grenville), Windsor Davies (Vicar).

The festive season is upon us . . . and for the stalwarts of Pledge's Purer Pickles, there's high drama and low farce 'mid the tinsel and the turkey when Eli becomes an impresario. He tries to double the picklers' Christmas party money by sinking it into a pantomime production.

"Sinking" seems the right word when the cast walks out and Nellie has to take over the part of Cinderella. She tells Eli : "If there's no money, them picklers will have your ear 'ole for an ashtray."

And it's as well that Christmas comes but once a year—for Nellie can't remember the script .

Written by John Stevenson; designed by Eric Deakins.

With Freddie Rayner (Grenville), Harry Littlewood (Landlord), John Barrie, Deirdre Costello, Charles Pemberton.

The actors marked as uncredited may be found in ITC's information pack but are not listed on the programme's end credits. There are no on-screen episode titles, and the same information pack describes the episode titles contained therein as "production titles only" which "should not be used to advertise the films as the stories are sometimes contrary to the title". This edict seems to have been followed by TV Times during 1957 and 1958 but by 1959 the story titles were appearing there too.

A Freeway Films production for Channel 4. Transmission details are for Channel 4. Duration: 50 minutes.

Hogmanay is a time for looking back on what's gone and brooding on what's to come, as well as a great excuse for celebrating. The programme certainly celebrates, but also pays respect to the serious side of the passing of the year. There is a collection of songs, new and old versus ancient and modern, and stories frivolous and philosophical, from a mostly Scottish company all set on bringing in the New Year in a way that gives something to think about as well as to enjoy.

Written by John McGrath; music by Rick Lloyd and Robert Handleigh; produced and directed by John McGrath.

Written by Ed McCardie; directed by Tim Mercier.

Each week's episodes were edited together into a 50-minute omnibus edition shown on a Thursday evening.

The series was shot as one complete block, but has been split by Kaleidoscope for ease of reference. The split has been made when ITV1 dropped the 25-minute episodes in favour of a 50-minute omnibus edition only.

OB inserts for were scheduled for 22.12.1965 but, once again, seem to have been cancelled. In "The Goodies: Super Chaps Three" (Kaleidoscope Publishing, 2010) Andrew Pixley notes that the recording session for this edition was cancelled at short notice. When and whether recording was re-convened at a later date and/or what exactly was shown in the slot allocated to ON THE BRADEN BEAT on 25.12.1965 or 01.01.1966 is unclear. A single paragraph review of BRADEN AGAIN appeared in Television Today [30.12.1965] which suggests that at least was recorded and, presumably, shown.

OPPORTUNITY KNOCKS

Produced for ITV by a variety of companies (see details below). Usual duration: 40 minutes.

Talent show. The format involved inviting back each week's winner onto the next show, but in the main that act won't be listed on their subsequent appearance because publicity and listings were produced too far in advance to carry it. At various points in its life the programme's title carried an exclamation mark in TVTimes, but this certainly wasn't always reflected in the on-screen titles.

Main regular performer(s): Hughie Green (Host).

Some of the outstanding acts which have appeared over the past three years on Opportunity Knocks!

Designed by Gordon Livesey; produced by Milo Lewis; directed by Royston Mayoh.

With Freddie Starr and The Delmonts, The Silverstone Set.

This series was seen more widely than the previous one, although - the Gala final aside - it was still unseen in London. Curiously, for a programme relying on interaction with the home audience, it was spread even further across the week with ABC's original screening on Saturday and further regional screenings on the following Sunday, Monday and Wednesday.

There's a unique Christmas gift corning the way of one of the winning acts from this series of Opportunity Knocks! It could be Peters and Lee. It could be singing miners Millican and Nesbitt. It could be I4-year-old vocalist Michael Ward. One of these acts will take home the silver dish awarded annually by the Variety Club to the act which has polled the highest average number of votes in the series. Also appearing are other artists you nave asked to see again. There is pianist Clara Evelyn; impressionist Tommy Tucker Kelly; Richard and Lara Jarmaine with their magic speciality act; Celli, who won the show's competition to appear as a princess in this year's Palladium pantomime, and singing Scotsman Stuart Gillies. Hughie Green introduces the show, backing is by Bob Sharpies and his Music, and last year's Award holder Bobby Crush hands it back for presentation to the new winner by a surprise guest star.

Designed by Norman Garwood; directed by Keith Beckett.

With Michael Ward, Clara Evelyn, Tommy Tucker Kelly, Richard & Lara Jarmaine, Calli, Stuart Gillies, Bobby Crush, Peters and Lee, Millican and Nesbitt.

Designed by Rod Stratfold; directed by Bruce Gowers.

With Jim and Ady, Calli, Stuart Gillies, Cool Breeze, Salt and Pepper, Canticle, Frankie McBride.

The songs were "Who made Mariana Cry?" by Arthur Bryant, "Troubadour" by John D. Bryant, "The Green Mistletoe" by Albert Lansfield, "A Quiet Man by John and Judith Shrive, "When the Summer's Gone" by Lance Wynsor, "Do It Some More" by Vic Lezal and "Shut the Gate" by Perry Vale and Al Perton.

The number of different designers working on this series seems extraordinarily high. There were 17 working on this series of 39 programmes and 13 on the next 26-edition series. Was the job such a prize that it was only fair to share it around? Or so horrible that spreading the load widely was the only way to handle it? Or maybe it was Thames' equivalent of the naughty step...

OTHELLO

An LWT production for ITV1. made in association with Canadian Broadcasting Corporation / WGBH Boston. Transmission details are for the Central region. Duration: 100 minutes.

This bold contemporary reworking of Shakespeare's great tragedy of jealousy and revenge will probably be one of the best things you'll see on television this Christmas. Scriptwriter Andrew Davies has moved the action from 16th-century Venice to 21st-century London, and the Metropolitan Police. The force has undergone a huge convulsion in its attitudes to race and colour. But the city's black population is a cauldron of anger and emotion. A black man has died in police custody a nd his community wants someone brought to account. In such a climate it is politically expedient for those in power to appoint a charismatic black officer to the post of commissioner. Thus John Othello (a mesmerising performance from Eamonn Walker) is promoted, in preference to his close colleague and best friend, Ben Jago (the spellbinding Christopher Eccleston). Jago is enraged. The job, he feels, should have been his. Of course, he shows none of this anger to Othello, who trusts him completely. But we, the audience, get to see the depth of his fury when Jago addresses us directly, to camera. This is a powerful dramatic conceit that draws us in to Jago's twisted and dangerous world. Whether we like it or not, he takes us with him as he plots the downfall of Othello.

Adapted by Andrew Davies; based on a play by William Shakespeare; script supervisor Ann Gallivan; director of photography Daf Hobson; designed by Malcolm Thornton; executive producers Jo Wright, Rebecca Eaton and Michele Buck; associate producer Ian Strachan; produced by Julie Gardner and Anne Pivcevic; directed by Geoffrey Sax.

Eamonn Walker (John Othello), Keeley Hawkes (Dessie Brabant), Christopher Eccleston (Ben Jago), Richard Coyle (Michael Cass), Rachael Stirling (Lulu), Bill Paterson (Sinclair Carver), Del Synnott (Police Constable Alan Roderick), Christopher Fox (Police Constable John Adey), Allan Cutts (Police Constable Gordon Stiller), Gerrard McArthur (Jim Gordon), John Harding (Prime Minister), Andrew Charleson (Tommy Rogers), Tim Faraday (Chief Superintendant), Michelle Newell (Alma Carver), Patrick Myers (Police Constable Gaunt), Tim Frances (Newspaper Editor), Jon Snow (Newsreader), Anna Niland (Estelle), Carl McCrystal (Geoffrey), Morgan Johnson (Billy Coates), Claire Oberman (Prosecuting Counsel), Nicholas Gecks (Home Secretary), Howard Coggins (Thug).

Duration: 40 minutes.

The Brockman household is probably the only one that can match EastEnders when it comes to ghastly family Christmas Days. So, after a dreadfully stressed few months -"Your sister, your dad, the job thing, the bedding infestation, Karen's silly letter... and the over-reaction of social services," lists Pete helpfully - they've decided to get Christmas done and dusted by 8.30am and fly off to the Canary Islands for a break.

With David Ryall (Grandad), Daisy Haggard (Charlene), Sam Kelly (Ron), Alice O'Connell (Doctor Hughes), Hattie Morahan (Jane), Okezie Morro (Jason), Kitty Martin (Maggie).

24.12.2012	Christmas Special	HD/DB / HDC

Duration: 40 minutes.

Last year the Brockmans decided to go away for Christmas: this year they're throwing a party at the heart of their community. But the bosom of the neighbourhood is not as pillowy and restful as they might like. The guests include Norris, who has opinions; Ray, who used to be a weatherman and doesn't seem to have coped well afterwards; and Jane, whose romantic life is unmanageable. Gran turns up for a surprise visit, Karen is online most of the time and at the window, there's the gentle, then insistent, tap-tap of a winter virus. There's only so much spirit-lifting a gathering of neighbours can be expected to do. For everything else, there's Ben and his party games. Christmas Swingball, anyone?

With Rosalind Ayres (Gran), Hattie Morahan (Jane), Mark Heap (Norris), Sanjeev Bhaskar (Ray), Sarah Woodward (Mary), Susannah Doyle (Tatiana), Bob Cryer (Police Constable Dixon).

PAM AYRES' CANADIAN CHRISTMAS

An LWT production. Transmission details are for the ATV midlands region. Duration: 50 minutes.

Who but our lovable, poetic Pam would meet an unsuspecting Scots bagpiper, and a Rodeo rider from Lancing, Sussex, while on a whirlwind journey across Canada? Who else would you find kissing a killer whale, visiting a gold rush town and riding the rapids on a raft? Apart from the exciting things she does and the unusual people she meets, Pam will also be giving us her inimitable view of life through her poems and reading Christmas requests from Canadians for their friends and relatives back in Britain.

22.12.2007 The Final Show [compilation of personal highlights] DB / DBSW

Duration: 55 minutes.

With Muhammad Ali, Fred Astaire, Richard Burton, Orson Welles, Billy Connolly, Lauren Bacall, Jack Benny, Elton John, Ricky Hatton, David Beckham, Cate Blanchett, Miss Piggy, Madonna, Renée Zellweger, Sandra Bullock, Sharon Stone, Meg Ryan, Paul Anka.

Kaleidoscope believes that the Mike Parkinson who produces the show is Michael P's son - not Parky under another name - so we've changed the credit accordingly. MP Junior definitely works in TV, that much we do know.

Props Buyer for the series is Bobby Warans:
Bob Richardson says, "Bobby Warans is a legend. He left the BBC to set up "G & T Prop Services Ltd" and is in great demand. He's far more than a prop buyer. On "Parkinson" Bobby will probably have decorated the "star" dressing rooms. He'll know the guests' favourite wines, and which hand-made chocolates they prefer. He'll also know their favourite colours and foods. He may have even arranged the finger buffet for hospitality (and it won't be Twiglets and warm beer - there'll be a lot of Harrod's labels around).

His Christmas card list is probably more impressive than the (other) Queen's. He's a close personal friend of many major international stars and is on first name terms with more divas than you can name. Bobby never boasts of his connections; he's incredibly professional in everything he does but you'll NEVER hear him name-dropping. He's also extremely discrete, so if Joan Collins has a little cry over some personal problem, she'll sob on Bobby's shoulder and he won't tell a soul.

I worked on many shows which Bobby serviced. He bought all the prizes for "Big Break" and hundreds of other game shows and negotiated great "sale or return" deals for producers. The drinks at hospitality were often provided by Bobby, as were bowls of fruit and fresh flowers in the Green Room. There's no end to his talents and he's rarely unable to come up with the goods. I did a Jasper Carrott series with him and the show featured a sketch about Michael Fagin's visit to the Queen's bedroom which included half a dozen stuffed corgis. When I asked Bobby where he got them at short notice, he told me that he had "a little man in the East End who runs them up for me." They were real corgis, and apparently Bobby's "little man" had a large storage unit full of chest freezers containing dead animals which were stuffed to order...just one of the many bizarre contacts in Bobby's little black book.

Prop buying apparently pays well. Bobby wears a brand new Gianni Versace silk shirt every day, made to his own specification (with a distinctive mandarin-style collar). He never wears the same shirt twice. After a single outing, they are cleaned, pressed and put away in his vast wardrobe. He's an absolutely unique character."

As Arthur, John, Michael and Polly prepare to hang for their crimes, Tommy's reprieve comes just in time to save their lives. Following their release, the Shelby family is scattered and estranged from one another. On Christmas of 1925, Ada returns from Boston and visits each of them: John and Esme continue their relationship of sex and arguments, Arthur remains stifled by Linda's watchful eye, Michael has begun using cocaine to stay on top of the business and Polly has fallen into a alcohol-fuelled mania, taking prescribed tablets to quell her visions of spirits. Tommy meets with Michael advises him to dispose of Polly's medication and help her through her mental illness without them. Each of the Shelbys receive a letter from Luca Changretta, a member of the Sicilian mafia, marking them for death in retribution for the murder of Angel and Vincente. Tommy and Ada attempt to convince the others to meet on Boxing Day, believing that they will be easier to pick off if they remain separated. However, when Tommy discovers and kills a mafia agent among his staff, he realises the assassination attempts are due to take place on Christmas Day and tries to get word to the rest of the family. After taking Polly and Ada to the meeting, Michael goes to collect John and Esme who Tommy could not get in contact with. A cart pulls up and John and Michael are riddled by a hail of bullets.

PETULA

An ATV production. Transmission details are for the ATV midlands region. Duration: 50 minutes.

The tables have at last been turned on David Frost! It happens as Petula Clark puts the master interviewer himself in the hot seat and actually interviews him. But David proves more slippery, than any of his own "victims".

It's all in fun of course, as part of Pet's own Christmas spectacular that sees David in an even more unfamiliar role - as Romeo to her Juliet. When it comes to sweeping a girl off her feet, Romeo has nothing on Dean Martin. In a sequence specially filmed in Hollywood, Dean takes his hostess for a real musical ride-with a song medley on horseback.
Also on the bill with the Everly Brothers is the fabulous Peggy Lee, making her first trip to Britain for nine years specially for the show.

Written by Herb Sargent, Bob Ellison, Dick Vosburgh and Barry Cryer; music associate Kenny Powell; choreography by Paddy Stone; designed by Bill McPherson; produced by Gary Smith, Dwight Hemion and Les Cocks; directed by Dwight Hemion and John Pullen.

THE PRIVATE LIFE OF A CHRISTMAS MASTERPIECE - THE MYSTIC NATIVITY

Commissioned by BBC 2. Transmission details are for BBC 2. Duration: 50 minutes.

It's a painting that lovers of mystery fiction should love. Botticelli's Mystic Nativity is a Renaissance masterpiece crammed with cryptic symbols disguising a dangerous message. But it is much more besides. Painted in 1500, it is a supremely beautiful vision of maternal love, earthly harmony and heavenly ecstasy. However, the painting also has a dark side. Botticelli had to carefully conceal its dangerous meaning, and only a recent chance discovery by a scholar fully unlocked its message.

Produced and directed by Ian Michael Jones.

QUEEN OF HEARTS

An ATV production. Transmission details are for the ATV midlands region. Duration: 75 minutes.

The Queen of Hearts, she made some tarts all on a Summer's Day. The Knave of Hearts, he stole those tarts... And this being pantomime, you can be sure that the Queen sets out with plenty of guile and custard pies to stop him getting quite away. Changing from one sumptuous costume to another--12 in all and each more gorgeous than the last- -Danny La Rue glitters his way through this lively romp as the Queen of Hearts, while Peggy Mount plays the villainous Queen of Spades.

Written by Bryan Blackburn; music director Derek New; choreography by Tommy Shaw; designed by Berkley Sutcliffe; produced and directed by Alan Tarrant.

Danny La Rue (Queen of Hearts), Peggy Mount (Queen of Spades), Mike Goddard (Knave of Hearts), Alan Haynes (Queen Mother), Colette Gleeson (Princess Miranda), David Ellen (Mr Mix, Major Domo), Tony Adams (Prince Damian), Jenny Layland (Fairy Good Heart), Terry Hall and Lenny The Lion, The Tommy Shaw Dancers, The Derek New Singers, Vera Legg School of Dancing.

In this special Christmas edition of the popular cartoon panel game, Bob Monkhouse keeps a line on a panel of rousing revellers. Keep with it to the end — there's a surprise guest who'll also be 'Quick on the Christmas Draw'.

With Leslie Crowther, William Rushton, Bill Tidy, Bob Godfrey*.

All editions featured three cartoonists who take part in all of the rounds. Most shows also featured a surprise guest from the world of cartooning who the celebrities had to identify. This latter guest was not billed in the TV Times and so we are unable to list him/her unless we have access to other sources for this information. Where known, we list the surprise guest last in the programme's cast list.

THE RAGGED CHILD

A BBC production for BBC 2. Transmission details are for BBC 2. Duration: 125 minutes.

Life in mid-19th-century London was harsh for the poor, and especially for poor children. This fast-moving musical tells the story of Joe and Annie Cooper, two of the 'ragged children' struggling to survive, and the many characters who both help and seek to harm them. The musical score is based largely on popular 19th-century songs.

Introduced by H.R.H. Prince Edward; written by Jeremy James Taylor and Frank Whately; music by David Nield; music director David Nield; sound Paul Cunliffe; lighting by Alan Woolford; make-up Joan Stribling; produced by Julia Matheson; directed by Jeremy James Taylor and Frank Whately; directed for television by David Buckton.

Jonny Lee Miller (Joe Cooper), Victoria Hayes (Annie Cooper), Charles Edwards (Earl Of Shaftesbury), Jason Denvir (John Giles), David Bliss (Leary), John Killoran (Patterer), Neil Rutherford (Sweeper), Scott Ransome (Rob Roy McGregor).

With Eric Burdon, The Spencer Davis Group, Dave Dee, Beaky, Dozy, Mick & Titch, Donovan, Paul Jones, Alan Price, The Who.

Items marked with an asterisk on shows that partially exist are the actual acts that survive on film.

The editions shown between 02.04.1965 and 28.05.1965 inclusive were broadcast under the title READY STEADY GOES LIVE! "Live" in this instance referred to the performances, i.e. the artists would no longer mime to records, it did not mean that the programme would now be broadcast live where previously it was not. Although the change of title was dropped once June 1965 arrived, the principle of live performance remained.

Performances by artists or groups marked * on episodes which only partially survive are extant. Entries marked † indicate songs that were heard on the show, but which did not feature on-screen performances by the artist or group. Usually, though not exclusively, these were played for the audience to dance to.

Despite the fact that the shows were broadcast live, some acts were pre-recorded separately and played out on tape.

Extracts from "By Jack Rosenthal", pages 370-371. It's from a final section written by Maureen Lipman after Rosenthal's passing:

"The last decade, professionally, was often awkward and frustrating. He was writing as effortlessly as ever, but to fewer commissions. It was a situation familiar to all his contemporaries who'd grown up in television. The new, young commissioning editors, ever mindful of ratings and of "hooking" the viewers over several nights of the week, had stopped commissioning single plays and were driven by star vehicles (especially ambulance and police vehicles) which were often underpowered or due for an MOT.

Jack had a real go at this in the recent remake of Ready When You Are, Mr. McGill. It was produced by Working Title films in 2002 and shown, finally, after an inexplicable year on a shelf, unheralded and unreviewed on Sky Movies in September 2004.

It starred Tom Courtenay as the eponymous Mr. McGill, an extra on a TV police drama, who has one line to say at the end of a day of bad weather, technical hitches and extreme frustration. Amanda Holden sent herself up beautifully as TV star Amanda Holden, Stephen Mangan played the unloved writer and Stephen Moore the smarmy TV executive. The director, played with eccentric brio by Bill Nighy, takes out all his frustrations for the day, for the cock-ups and, probably, for his whole life, on the extra, the one person who can't fight back.

The night Sky chose to air McGill was Rosh Hashana, the Jewish New Year, and after dinner nine or ten of us sat around the TV and raised a glass to our absent author. "

Shown by Sky when ITV rejected the finished version. Eventually shown much later in a late-night time slot with no reference to the fact that ITV had commissioned the drama originally. It was dedicated to Jack Rosenthal 1931-2004.

A BBC production for BBC 2. Transmission details are for BBC 2.

SERIES 8

Holding / Source

29.12.2001 John Betjeman – The Last Laugh DB / DBSW

Duration: 65 minutes.

A one-off special in the Reputations strand that provides an intimate portrait of the late Sir John Betjeman, the poet laureate who died, aged 77, in 1984. Betjeman's life was full of contrasts. He entertained the world with his warmth and enthusiasm, but, inwardly, he was haunted by fear, religious doubt, remorse and guilt.

Series editor Jenny Abbott; produced by Edward Mirzoeff.

With John Betjeman, Simon Russell-Beale (Narrator), H.R.H. Prince Charles, Lord Snowdon.

REST YOU MERRY

A BBC Wales production for BBC. Transmission details are for BBC. Duration: 75 minutes.

This is the story of the Williams family: mum and dad, harassed and not a little worried about the expense of it all; two excited youngsters; a beautiful, though somewhat blasé, teenage daughter preparing for the ball; her long-suffering boy-friend, and the inevitable, if in this case surprising, elderly relative who is coming to stay. They all have their problems, but, as it is a play for the Christmas season, these are all cleared up happily in the end.

Written by Elaine Morgan; designed by Alan Taylor; production by David J. Thomas.

Jessie Evans (Alice Williams), Aubrey Richards (Arthur Williams), Daphne Heard (Jin), Graham Curnow (Sam Brown), Ronnie Raymond (Tommy Williams), Elizabeth Lanchbury (Carol Williams), Patricia Vaizey (Fay Williams), Denis Charlton (Postman), Dilys Davies (Mrs Roberts).

20.12.2011	Christmas Special	HD/DB / HDC

It's Christmas at St Saviour's and someone has stolen the Three Wise Men's camels from the Nativity display. Vicar Adam Smallbone refuses to be downhearted — maybe the missing beasts can be replaced by cows? "A Wise Man crossing the desert on a cow?" blusters outraged parishioner Adoha.

That's Adam, a man for whom there are never problems, there are only solutions. But even his legendary compassion and good nature are stretched by a truly testing Christmas. He loses a friend, he is head-butted by another, supposed, mate and his father-in-law arrives unexpectedly. Worse, Midnight Mass is disrupted by drunks and Adam melts down in a spectacular, funny/sad, Adam-type way.

Written by James Wood and Sam Bain; executive producers Kenton Allen and Tom Hollander; produced by Hannah Pescod; directed by Peter Cattaneo.

With Olivia Colman (Alex Smallbone), Jimmy Akingbola (Mick), Steve Evets (Colin Lambert), Miles Jupp (Nigel McCall), Lucy Liemann (Ellie Patman), Simon McBurney (Archdeacon Robert), Ellen Thomas (Adoha Onyeka), Geoffrey Palmer (Martin), Severn Brand (Courtney), Katie Males (Lisa), Eliza Newman (Chloe), Ben Willbond (Steve Warnick).

A Brook production. Duration: 75 minutes.

"It was a year that began with the hope of new world order," say Polly Bide and Ed Braman, producers of this look at the year. "There was optimism that peace would break out. But all the time we have had reminders, both at home and abroad, that this assumption has been under constant threat," Indeed, 12 months ago there was a growing confidence in a brighter future, and there have been events, like the Middle East peace initiatives, that fulfilled those dreams. What happened in Bosnia and Somalia, however, has provided stories of continuing sadness, while at home the murder of 2-year-old James Bulger shocked the nation, It has also been the year when inflation fell, Buckingham Palace opened its doors to the public and fashion went grunge.

REVOLTING RHYMES

A Magic Light Pictures production for BBC 1. Transmission details are for BBC 1. Duration: 30 minutes.

An animated adaptation of three poems written by Roald Dahl that give fairy tales grisly twists. The tale weaves together Little Red Riding Hood, Snow White and The Three Little Pigs. There are sideswipes at banks, developers and stepmothers, delivered in waspish couplets, with each tale given a nasty, Dahl-ing twist.

Main regular credit(s): Written by Roald Dahl; produced by Martin Pope and Michael Rose; directed by Jakob Schuh and Jan Lachauer.

Main regular cast: Dominic West (Wolf / Magic Fairy / Giant), Rose Leslie (Red Riding Hood), Gemma Chan (Snow White), Tamsin Greig (Babysitter / Miss Maclahose / Grandma), Rob Brydon (King / Rolf / Banker Pig / Short Sister), Isaac Hempstead Wright (Jack), Bel Powley (Cindy), David Walliams (Rex / Twig Pig / Bystander / Tall Sister / Jack's Mother), Bertie Carvel (Mirror / Huntsman / Senior Dwarf / Prince), Dolly Heavey (Young Red Riding Hood), Eden Muckle (Young Snow White), Dylan Issberner (Boy), Amelia Forester-Evans (Girl).

THE ROYAL YEAR

An ITN production. Transmission details are for the London Weekend Television region. Duration: 40 minutes.

Prince Edward left the Marines; when the Duchess of York won her wings as a pilot in her first full year as a member of the Royal Family; the year when Prince Charles said that 'something must be done' for the inner cities, and when the Queen intervened over Fiji. Julia Somerville reviews the highlights of a year when royalty were hardly ever out of the headlines, talks to some of the 'royal watchers' and reveals the results of an exclusive opinion poll on what we all think of the most famous family in the land.

Research Tim Friend; programme editor Mike Sheppard; directed by Tim Sumner.

Julia Sommerville (Presenter).

There's snow on the ground in Elsinby and Christmas is coming. For the staff of The Royal, the festive season is proving to be as eventful as ever. Dr Gordon Ormerod and Staff Nurse Meryl Taylor are faced with a battle against time when they are called out to help a young boy who has fallen through the ice on a frozen lake. On their arrival at the scene they are horrified to discover that Peter Thomas has been trapped below the surface for over twenty minutes. The emergency services eventually manage to break the ice and drag his lifeless body from the water. Dr Ormerod desperately tries to resuscitate Peter but disaster strikes on the way back to the hospital when the ambulance becomes stuck in a snowdrift. With time of the essence they eventually manage to dig out the stranded vehicle and on their arrival back at The Royal the medical team continue their attempts to revive Peter. But as the minutes tick by, Dr Ormerod begins to accept that their efforts are futile. Matron prepares Peter's parents for the worst, whilst back in the operation theatre Dr Ormerod and Dr Jill Weatherill reluctantly agree to stop any further attempts at resuscitation and begin to remove Peter's breathing tube. But the young lad appears to have a guardian angel hovering over him and there is a sigh of relief when he suddenly starts to cough and calls out for his parents. Meanwhile, Dr Jeffrey Goodwin is faced with a few problems of his own when Ray Piper is brought in to the hospital with a huge bump on his head. Dr Goodwin and Mr Rose can barely contain their amusement when Ray explains that his injures are the result of being hit on the head by a frozen turkey which was thrown by his wife. Alun is taken aback when he opens a cupboard door to find an elderly gentleman sitting inside. Matron and Student Nurse Samantha Beaumont try to find out the man's identity and are surprised to learn that he is Ray's father, Ernest. On hearing that her grandfather has been admitted to hospital, Suzanne Piper arrives to see him. She is furious to discover that her mother has grown tired of looking after Ernest and dumped him at the hospital. Suzanne rushes off to confront her mother and it's not long before another member of the Piper clan is admitted to casualty - Mrs Norma Piper! There is excitement in the air when a film crew from Tyne Tees Television arrives at The Royal to film a special Christmas item for their evening news programme. Desperate for his fifteen minutes of fame Mr Harper decides to join the hospital choir. After a tuneless singing display in rehearsals, Mr Middleditch tells Mr Harper that he can't be in the choir as he has a much more important job for him. And the troublesome official is less than impressed to discover that he will have to appear on camera dressed as Father Christmas. As the moment of transmission draws closer, Lizzie is star struck when veteran television presenter Lennie Lemarr arrives. But as the cameras roll, trouble is just around the corner. Guest star for the Christmas episode is SIMON BATES who plays television presenter Lennie Lemarr.

Val Parnell's name was dropped from the title of the later programmes, and those were billed as SATURDAY SPECTACULAR. When other regions took the show on another weekday, as happened regularly during the programme's first year or so, it was billed there as VAL PARNELL'S SPECTACULAR.

After the end of the series in 1961, ATV London continued to broadcast a number of similar variety specials in the same slot, with names in the style of "The So-and-So Show". On occasion, contemporary reviewers would still refer to these as SATURDAY SPECTACULAR but ATV's own contemporary paperwork shows that the final production made under the title was the one broadcast on 18.03.1961.

For the majority of the surviving editions there is little contemporary paperwork, and what we have seen rarely notes whether the episode was recorded. For a period, ABC Television only broadcast alternate editions, and those which they missed were shown a few days later by ATV midlands, so these must have been telerecorded to allow that to happen. However plenty of editions survive which did not need to be recorded for this purpose while, conversely, a few which must have been recorded to allow the later broadcast are lost. With that in mind, it is probable that a number of other programmes in the series, which no longer survive, were also recorded but, unless we have specific evidence which confirms this, we have assumed that they were never telerecorded or, in the case of later shows,

15.02.1997 Gobble DB-D3 / C1SW

A Hat Trick production. Duration: 73 minutes.

Postponed from 21.12.1996.

It's Christmas Day, and the family is just tucking into roast turkey when father keels over, clutching his stomach in agony. He's the latest victim of what the press soon learns to call "mad turkey disease" - a deadly virus that strikes at one of our most cherished traditions. This drama is a satirical variation on the theme of BSE and allied food scares. It stars Kevin Whately as the hapless government official who is commissioned to find out the truth - braving the wrath of animal rights activists and paranoid turkey barons along the way.

Written by Nick Newman and Ian Hislop; executive producers Mary Bell and David M. Thompson; produced by Grainne Marmion; directed by Jimmy Mulville.

With Kevin Whately (Colin Worsfold), Keith Barron (Arthur Hedley), Jack Dee (Pathologist), Peter Egan (Peter Villiers), Warren Mitchell (Waterboard Chairman), Pippa Guard (Claire Worsfold), Nicholas Jones (George Cranley), Geoffrey McGivern (Geoffrey Lester), Matthew Delamere (Ben Worsfold), Jake Wood (Androcles), Caroline Trowbridge (Maureen), Morgan Jones (Spike), Selina Cadell (Treasury Boss), Jonathan Coy (Hans Gluck), Michael Thomas (Montague), Stephen Frost (Gun Shop Assistant), Cas Harkins (Journalist), Melissa Wilson (Journalist), Tom Hollander (Pipsqueak), Jason O'Mara (Regional Newspaper Journalist), Sara Mair Thomas (Scientist), Mark Spalding (Policeman), Suzy Aitchison (Newsreader), Hugo Chandor (Newsreader), Richard Whitmore (Celebrity Newspaper), Paul Broughton (Security Man), Alan Igbon (Security Man), Michael Fenton Stevens (Gordon The Gobbler), Philip Rowlands (Beardie), Howard Lew Lewis (Fat Bloke).

SEAN CONNERY PROFILE

A BBC production for BBC 1. Transmission details are for BBC 1. Duration: 50 minutes.

In the 60s he was the biggest movie star and probably the best known face in the world. A very ordinary Scotsman who created, and then tried to escape from, a role that was submerging him — James Bond. The publicity legend made out that he was unknown before Bond, and for many he disappeared back into oblivion when he gave up the role ten years ago. This programme looks at the role that made cinema history and at the other side of the actor who created 007. Clips from early movies like Darby O'Gill and the Little People, from early BBCtv dramas of Shakespeare and Anna Karenina, from the best six Bonds, and later successes.

Film editor Bob Bathgate; produced by Marjorie Orr.

Adam Tandy remembers: "Seasons Greetings" was the first BBC production I worked on as a proper behind the scenes person, having trailed for a month on other programmes. It really was an epic of its day and one of the last studio Play of the Months. The set was three storeys high with camera cranes and platforms to capture the upstairs action, and floating fourth walls on the ground floor to allow deep cross-shooting through the set. Television Centre's TC1 was actually the only electronic studio in Europe large enough to hold it. I think we used 8 cameras in all. Even the outside rehearsal technical run seemed to be the most complicated thing I'd ever been involved in.

Michael Simpson camera rehearsed the first 30 minutes of the play as a single sequence for the best part of a day and a half, and managed to get the first 20 minutes in the can in the evening of day 2. In one take. We had a four day schedule and it ran into five days eventually. It was a very pressured working environment for everyone, and I remember on one occasion when we failed to get a scene completed by suppertime on the third or fourth day Barbara Flynn burst into tears of frustration as the lights were turned off around her. There were no over-runs without union agreement in those days.

Michael Simpson is one of my all-time heroes. Drama studio multi-camera is a dying art, but Simpson just had the knack. He obviously felt he wanted to capture the fluid wit of Ayckbourn by recording as-live if possible, but it was a hugely ambitious attempt with such a big set, even one as carefully designed as theirs and with a properly rehearsed cast and a camera crew as experienced as Ron Green's (Crew 7).

They just bit off more than they could chew, but as someone who had just come from several years in proper theatre I found this sort of approach entirely appropriate. We all started with these long flowing scenes and huge bundles of camera cards. As the days wore on, the style became more and more piecemeal, grabbing scenes where they could, until unnecessary reverses into rooms with floaters in began to be dropped and complicated camera scripting and action was simplified. But the cast loved him, he never flapped or shouted, and obviously got the best out of everyone in the studio as a result. I think that warmth came over in the finished play.

He came up to visit his good lady wife on location for Last of the Summer Wine when I worked on it a couple of years later and I found him to be just as charming when "off-duty", so to speak.

A man can make a million out of turkeys, but he may not be very good with birds.

The background of this Christmas comedy is a slogan-seeking London advertising agency. Julia Foster plays Perdita, a young secretary who is persuaded to step out.

Written by Fay Weldon; designed by Peter Le Page; directed by Voytek.

With Julia Foster (Perdita Watson), Valerie Gearon (Rachel Wells), Frederick Jaeger (Sir Charles Edey), Renée Houston (Polly), Julian Orchard (Lucas Krell), Norman Mitchell (Salt), Julie May (Mrs Salt), John Gill (Ted), Donald Sumpter (Eddie), Ann Way (Housemaid).

Ways and Means, The Secretary, Floods of Flowers, Success Story, Heir Apparently and Trial Run were given production numbers and were not made. Despite its title, it seems that Thames' early publicity was calling this a series of "romantic plays" and named the writers as Fay Weldon, Nigel Balchin, Barbara Cartland, Leo Lehman, Shona MacKay and Margaret Drabble.

THE SLEEPING BEAUTY

An Anglia production. made in association with WGBH Boston. Transmission details are for the Central region. Duration: 50 minutes.

Once upon a time in a magical kingdom far away, the King and Queen were celebrating the christening of their baby Princess. The good fairies brought gifts of beauty, music and happiness. Suddenly, the wicked fairy, uninvited, interrupts the ceremony and casts an evil spell... So begins one of the best-loved fairy stories of all time. This new adaptation is television's biggest and most spectacular ice show ever. It brings together for the first time a unique new partnership of the world's top skating superstars. Co-starring as the Prince and Princess are Britain's world professional champion and Olympic gold medallist, Robin Cousins, and America's Rosalynn Sumners, the world professional ladies champion and Olympic silver medallist. The 50- strong cast includes leading skaters from Britain, the United States, Canada and Germany. The glittering costumes in a magical setting and Tchaikovsky's breathtaking music combine with dance and drama to create an enchanting experience to remember.

Written by Tom Gutteridge; music by Tchaikovsky; orchestra conducted by Bramwell Tovey; choreography by Lar Lubovitch; executive producers Colin Ewing and Greg Harney; produced by Bernice Olenick; directed by Tom Gutteridge.

Small Time was, at different times, a programme in its own right, a programme which contained within it another programme and an umbrella title mainly of benefit to listings magazines.

For most of its life, it had a fifteen-minute slot during which someone, usually Muriel Young, would read out birthdays and get up to larks in the studio with some combination of the glove-puppets Pussy Cat Willum, Ollie Beak and Fred Barker, and would at some point introduce an eight-to-ten minute programme which might be on film (e.g Ivor The Engine or The Pingwings) or might be performed live in the studio (pretty much anything else unless it was made by Roberta Leigh).

From the spring of 1958, it ran four times a week, the fifth slot being given over in its entirety to one of Roberta Leigh's film series (either The Adventures of Twizzle, Torchy, or Sara and Hoppity) and while these programmes continued to be billed in TV Times as "Small Time" there was no live studio production on those days to wrap around Leigh's films and so these dates are not listed here.

All the individual Small Time shows, from The Adventures of Booty Mole to The Wonderful Adventures of Gorki The Straw Goat, have their own listings, the production details here relate only to the Small Time "wrapper". In most cases, the same director handled both the wrapper and any live studio "insert".

SOME SANTAS WITH JOKES

Commissioned by BBC 4. Transmission details are for BBC 4. Duration: 30 minutes.

Ho and, to an extent, ho. Brace yourselves for the favourite gags of men from around the country who like to don baggy red trousers and an elasticated beard at around this time of year. Some of the jokes are merrily hovering just below cracker standard, and several are only fit for repetition once the kids are in bed and everyone’s had five cooking sherries. If today’s been a thankless whirl of herding, fi xing and organising, this sort of grown-up silliness could be the perfect way to let off steam.

A SOURCE OF INNOCENT MERRIMENT

A Thames Television production. Transmission details are for the Central region. Duration: 40 minutes.

Getting an opera on the stage is a serious business, unless the opera is The Mikado, and the producer is Jonathan Miller. This film follows rehearsals at the English National Opera's Hampstead studios and onto the stage at London's Coliseum Theatre, revealing along the way how the opera comes together and some of the hard work — as well as some of the fun — that lies behind a huge success. This documentary is literally a curtain-raiser for the full performance of The Mikado.

Duration: 100 minutes.

A two-hour showcase of the best of '87 in theatre, music and the arts. From Julia McKenzie in Follies to the Stock Market satire, Serious Money— from pop music with the Bhundu Boys to the Rambert Dance Company — these and other outstanding events of the year are seen here performed in front of a celebrity audience. There's also a look at the year's best films and TV. Writer and critic Adam Mars-Jones discusses the British film industry's apparent obsession with sex, and the audience debates questions of TV censorship. Leading sculptor David Mach puts the finishing touches to a work specially created for Arts Review '87 in the studio, and Melvyn Bragg presides over this celebration of the best and the new.

It is hard, at this distance, to work out in what way SPOTLIGHT differed from CLOSE UP and PROFILE. All three had the same slot on different but interleaving weeks, and had the same presenter, producer, director and, when credited, writer. Each of them appears to have profiled a star or a genre primarily through film clips, with occasional interviews, particularly when the star was British.

(VAL PARNELL'S) SUNDAY NIGHT AT THE LONDON PALLADIUM

An ATV production. Transmission details are for ITV. Usual duration: 52 minutes.

SERIES 1

Transmission details are for the ATV London region.

Main regular performer(s): With The London Palladium Girls [as George Carden's London Palladium Girls], The London Palladium Orchestra.

Holding / Source

18.12.1955 Cinderella J / Live

Duration: 75 minutes.

Brought forward from 25.12.1955.

Orchestra directed by Eric Rogers; choreography by George Carden; directed by Bill Lyon-Shaw.

With Max Bygraves (Buttons), Richard Hearne (Baron), Adele Dixon (Prince Charming), Bartlett & Ross (The Ugly Sisters), Barbara Leigh (Cinderella), Zoe Gail (Dandini).

This edition was entirely given over to a pantomime. Bygraves, Hearne and Dixon had all appeared in Cinderella when it was presented as The London Palladium's panto in the winter of 1953/54, and it seems that it was hoped that Julie Andrews, who then took the title role, would reprise it here. Some ATV publicity seemed to suggest that this would be the case with the programme being earmarked for Christmas Day. We are unsure whether Andrews' absence is connected to its broadcast being brought forward to a less prestigous date.

25.12.1955 J / Live

Directed by Bill Ward.

With Tommy Trinder (Host), Vic Damone, Pier Angeli, Max Wall, Alma Cogan, Bob Hope, Jewel and Warriss, Billy Cotton, Manci Crompton, Zoe Gail, Bert Bernard.

01.01.1956 Mother Goose J / Live

Duration: 65 minutes.

Book by Basil Thomas; orchestra directed by Eric Rogers; directed by Bill Ward.

With Max Bygraves (Sammy), Richard Hearne (Mother Goose), Hy Hazell (Colin), Harry Cranley (The Goose), Sid Milward and his Nitwits, Pauline Grant, The George Carden Dancers, The London Palladium Orchestra.

This edition contained no variety elements as such and instead featured a potted version of the pantomime "Mother Goose" which had been at the Palladium in the winter of 1954/55.

SERIES 7

Transmission details are for the ABC midlands region.

Main regular credit(s): Executive producer Val Parnell; produced by Francis Essex.

Production No Holding / Source

31.12.1961 8531 J / Live

Duration: 75 minutes.

Orchestra conducted by Cyril Stapleton and Bob Sharples; designed by Richard Lake.

With Roy Castle, Ronnie Carroll, Alma Cogan, Lonnie Donegan, Cleo Laine, Vera Lynn, Janie Marden, Gary Miller, Cliff Richard, Bert Weedon, The Jack Parnell Orchestra.

The artists appeared without a fee on the understanding that ATV was making a donation on their behalf to the Stars' Organisation for Spastics.

Live from the London Palladium the British viewing public had a taste of all the greatest stars between 1955 and 1974. Lew Grade, the master negotiator of ATV Television made regular trips to the USA signing up major artistes to come and perform every week.

It began on the 25th September 1955 when ITV was in its infancy. The first host, Tommy Trinder, was supported by the George Carden Dancers and the London Palladium Orchestra. Given various names over the years including the London Palladium Girls, the Pamela Devis Dancers and the Tiller Girls, these girls would give showbiz glamour support to many hosts including Bob Monkhouse, Jim Dale, Ted Rogers, Dickie Henderson, Jimmy Tarbuck and most famously Bruce Forsyth. Bruce was by the far the most successful host for the series. Its biggest audience was in January 1960 with Bruce in an edition featuring Cliff Richard watched by over twenty million people.
The orchestras, directed at different times by Eric Rogers and Jack Parnell always played live, speeding up when a show over-ran or slowing down to make sure that a show finished on time!

After the Tiller girls and the less known acts in the first part was the game show, Beat the Clock. People had to arrange words stuck to a magnetic board "into a well known phrase or saying" in thirty seconds. Could the contestants cope with the pressure as the second hand moved around the large clock face?

The second section of the show was reserved for star names. In the early days Trinder introduced many well-known acts including Gracie Fields, Eartha Kitt, Lonnie Donegan, Shirley Bassey and Howard Keel. In later years there were visits from Judy Garland, Bob Hope, Vic Damone, Cliff Richard and the Shadows and Ella Fitzgerald. Comedy interludes were provided by Frankie Howerd, Arthur Askey, Bernard Bresslaw, Morecambe and Wise and Tommy Cooper amongst others.

The show always ended with a large revolving stage where the glamour girls, the compere and that night’s guests stood on it as it slowly turned clockwise to the familiar theme tune of the show.

Despite the huge plethora of famous guest stars, the series is best remembered for an edition made during the 1961 strike by the acting union Equity, who refused to allow its performers to appear that week. Bruce Forsyth and Norman Wisdom had signed contracts before the dispute began so they performed the entire show themselves, improvising quickly to fill fifty minutes of live chaos.

Rebranded as The New Palladium Show, and filmed in colour for export to US audiences, the series was abruptly cancelled by Lord Grade in 1967. Regretting his mistake, it returned briefly in 1973. Beginning in October 1973 with live transmissions, after four weeks the IRA mainland bombing campaign led to a severe curtailment of all live television. The 25th November 1973 edition was not live, instead being constructed of previous recordings of Pamela Giselle, Larry Grayson and Paul Anka. The 6th January 1974 episode was cancelled due to a bomb scare close by and was never shown, despite a rushed edit being created from previous inserts. The end of the 1974 run saw the shows being recorded earlier the same day to prevent this happening again.

The few surviving editions have now been released on DVD to be enjoyed again, except for the 28th October 1973 edition featuring Petula Clark, Rudolph Nureyev, Merle Park, Bryn Phillips and Desmond & Marks which was unclearable.

It was noted, in TV Times, that programmes were recorded and that a number of contestants who went on the show did not make it into the finished programme. Whether this method of production was employed throughout the programme's life is not clear, but it would probably mean that for much of the time the show would have had to be telerecorded on film.

A number of the episodes broadcast in June and July 1962 were listed by the TV Times as repeats; we have been unable to locate any earlier transmissions. The Stage reported on 19.02.59 that seven plays were taken from 'David Copperfield', four from 'The Pickwick Papers' and one each from 'A Christmas Carol' and a story called 'The Runaways'. According to the same journal on 16.04.59 the number of episodes had risen to 39, though on 14.01.1960 it noted that the series had been sold to a U.S. network, which necessited the production of a further 13 episodes to bring the total to 26. A screening of an as yet unknown episode on Channel Television in early 1974 made that region's top ten. See: ARMCHAIR THEATRE - Young David.

"Call on the Widow" (21.06.1956) was a repeat (as far as London viewers were concerned) of the play originally broadcast under the LONDON PLAYHOUSE banner. "The Outsider" (02.08.1956) was a London-only broadcast of the play previously shown in the midlands and the north as part of ARMCHAIR THEATRE and thus was the only entry in the entire series to be made by ABC. "The Pay Off" (q.v.), broadcast by ATV only on 27.08.1956, was originally shown by A-R as a standalone drama and may be found in a separate entry under that title. "Night was Our Friend", (15.11.1956), "Never Look Back" (03.01.1957), "Dangerous Cargo" (28.03.1957) and "Torment" (28.02.1958), although transmitted under this title, were films made for the cinema. "One of Our Men is Guilty" (28.02.1957), "Heir For A Shoestring" (07.12.1961) and "The Prizewinner" (14.12.1962) were made for television but were Canadian productions.

11.12.2011 21:30 – 22:35 HDC / HDC

24.12.2011 19:30 – 22:00 HDC / HDC

Duration: 125 minutes.

Holly Willoughby joins Ant and Dec to introduce an entertainment spectacular in aid of charity as celebrity guests drop by to contribute musical and comedy performances and help the hosts to deliver a sack-load of glad tidings. Viewers can also do their bit to spread good will to the most vulnerable by texting donations to the charities featured on the programme.

Series producer Amanda Kean; directed by Simon Staffurth.

With Holly Willoughby (Host), Ant & Dec (Hosts).

21.12.2012 20:00 – 23:00 HDC / HDC

Duration: 150 minutes.

The festive charity appeal returns for a second year, as presenters Ant and Dec, Holly Willoughby, Phillip Schofield, Paddy McGuinness and Christine Bleakley join forces with a bevy of celebrities to raise funds for six deserving causes. The show includes a special seasonal edition of Coronation Street with stars of the soap past and present, a duet from Gary Barlow and Dawn French, a Family Fortunes special with Jonathan Ross and Jo Brand, and the Loose Women panellists auditioning for The X Factor. Plus Rupert Penry-Jones and the cast of Whitechapel team up with other ITV detectives in a murder-mystery spoof. Also in the studio are Dame Helen Mirren, David Harewood, Rebecca Ferguson, Alan Titchmarsh and some of the stars of Emmerdale. A special Text Santa edition of Celebrity Juice followed at 1115pm.

Written by Andy Milligan, Paul Powell and Mark Cowley; produced by Susan Maxwell; directed by Simon Staffurth.

With Ant & Dec (Presenters), Holly Willoughby (Presenter), Phillip Schofield (Presenter), Paddy McGuinness (Presenter), Christine Bleakley (Presenter), Gary Barlow, Dawn French, Jonathan Ross, Jo Brand, Rupert Penry-Jones, Helen Mirren, David Harewood, Rebecca Ferguson, Alan Titchmarsh.

Duration: 150 minutes.

Series producer Sally Wood.

With Ant & Dec (Hosts), Holly Willoughby (Host), Phillip Schofield (Host), Paddy McGuinness (Host), Christine Bleakley (Host), Coronation Street Cast, Shane MacGowan, Blue, Atomic Kitten, 5IVE, Honeyz, B*Witched, 911, Liberty X.

19.12.2014 20:00 – 23:20 HDC / HDC

Duration: 160 minutes.

aAs the fundraising jamboree returns for a fourth year, three presenting duos — Ant and Dec, Phillip Schofield and Christine Bleakley, and Paddy McGuinness and Alesha Dixon — divvy up the hourly shifts between them. The sextet will be joined by a galaxy of star guests as the coffers of six charities are given a very welcome Christmas top-up. Among the highlights are Hollywood royalty George Clooney paying a visit to Downton Abbey, and the stars of Coronation Street appearing in a sketch with a Text Santa twist. The Birds of a Feather are surprised by a visit they'll never forget, while Messrs McPartlin and Donnelly tempt a famous face with a Yule Tucker Trial — accompanied by a serenade from an all-star choir made up of former residents of the I'm a Celebrity... jungle camp. The Mr Selfridge and Emmerdale casts add some more seasonal glitter, along with musical performances galore and, of course, one or two surprise guest appearances. The charities benefiting from the nation's generosity this year are Teenage Cancer Trust, Guide Dogs, Marie Curie Cancer Care, Alzheimer's Society, WellChild and Together for Short Lives.

Executive producer Maria Knibbs; directed by Chris Power.

With Ant & Dec (Presenters), Phillip Schofield (Presenter), Christine Bleakley (Presenter), Paddy McGuinness (Presenter), Alesha Dixon (Presenter), George Clooney, Linda Robson, Pauline Quirke.

18.12.2015 20:00 – 23:05 Text Santa Christmas Jumper Day HDC / HDC

Duration: 151 minutes.

As the fund-raising extravaganza returns for a fifth year, you are cordially invited to slip on your most festive garb — the more kitsch the better — for a star-studded night that will be providing funds for Macmillan Cancer Support, Make-A-Wish UK and Save the Children. Among the highlights promised are Joan Collins on the prowl for a man in a Benidorm sketch and today's Coronation Street stars being taken back to see famous Weatherfi eld faces of the past by a very special guest. At Downton Abbey, Lord Grantham has his work cut out picking a Father Christmas for the stately home when he has to choose from the likes of Sir Bruce Forsyth, Gordon Ramsay, Gok Wan, Jim Broadbent, Michelle Keegan and Warwick Davis, not to mention Brenda Blethyn in her Vera guise. Other celebrities risk life and limb taking on the Wall in Ninja Warrior, while Big Star, Bigger Star provides a twist as familiar fi gures compete with their parents, instead of their nippers.

Executive producer Maria Knibbs; directed by Chris Power.

With Phillip Schofield (Host), Holly Willoughby (Host), Amanda Holden (Host), Alesha Dixon (Host), Stephen Mulhern (Host), Olly Murs (Host), Caroline Flack (Host), Joan Collins, Bruce Forsyth, Gordon Ramsay, Warwick Davis, Jim Broadbent, Gok Wan, Michelle Keegan, Brenda Blethyn.

Alt.Title(s): The First Footer

A Scottish Television production.

Alternative transmissions: Scottish Television: 24.12.1962, postponed from 21.11.1961; TWW: 17.04.1963.

Written by John Keir Cross; play production by Desmond O'Donovan.

With John Fraser, Dave Willis.

This first season gained and may have lost as a result of the actors' strike. The original twelve plays were cut down to eleven, with TWW's "The Dice" postponed until the second series, but the lack of available material for ITV once the strike was over meant that two of the plays "Dare To Be A Daniel" and "The Little Gold Mine" were fully networked.

THIS OFFICE LIFE

Alternative/Working Title(s): OFFICE LIFE [ORIGINAL NOVEL]

A BBC production for BBC 1. Transmission details are for BBC 1. Duration: 80 minutes.

On arrival at British Albion, Mr Gryce felt that his lack of ambition would be completely fulfilled. There was a luncheon voucher scheme, a pension fund, paid holidays - and (apparently) nothing much doing between the hours of nine to five. Then his colleagues began to take an unhealthy interest in him. They asked questions he couldn't answer, and answered questions he hadn't asked. Only the lovely Pam made life bearable, but even she was not quite what she seemed.

Written by Keith Waterhouse; music by Trevor Jones; sound Chris King and Ken Hains; film editor John Stothart; photographed by David Whitson; production associate Andrew Gosling; designed by John Asbridge; production managers Jacmel Dent and Enid Musson; produced and directed by Ian Keill.

Three years ago, when Beyond the Fringe opened at the Edinburgh Festival, British humour made a successful breakthrough. It began to deal with taboo subjects—race, politics, sex, religion—and freely abused public figures. As well as successful TV programmes the movement included publishing, the theatre and a night-club But is the satire boom going bust? What has it achieved? This special Boxing Day edition of This Week investigates the rise and fall of the British satire boom.

With Pat Coombs (Ethel Carey), Joan Sims (Gran), Hugh Lloyd, Richard Speight.

The quotation marks in the title came and went at different points during the various series.

Unfunny, racist, sexist and homophobic are just a few of the accusations made against the seminal work of Johnny Speight, “Till Death Us Do Part”, since its first broadcast in 1965.

Indeed for a piece of television to be this attacked would normally result in it being buried under a pile of concrete like a traitor within the ranks of the mafia. Quietly forgotten about by history. However, forty five years later, the legend of Alf Garnett remains as iconic as it did in the swinging sixties.

“Till Death” remains for many to be the perfect stereotypical sitcom that produced perfect unstereotypical jokes. It was controversial, it was always discussed the day after at work, it wasn’t always funny, but it did make people think, and question the nature of sixties society.

On the 22nd November 1965 the BBC’s Comedy Playhouse strand introduced us to Alf and Else Ramsey, and their daughter Rita and husband Mike. Three of the actors would remain with the series – Warren Mitchell as Alf, Una Stubbs are Rita and Tony Booth as Mike. The role of Else was played by Gretchen Franklin (Ethel from Eastenders) and was re-cast and given to Dandy Nicols.

The pilot opened with Alf checking the chimes of Big Ben and proclaiming he had proof that Big Ben was inaccurate. Intermingled with discussions about politics and the role of women came a semblance of plot – Rita and Mike looking for their own home, only eight weeks after they were married.

Johnny Speight, the writer, originally wanted Peter Sellers or Lionel Jeffries to play Alf Ramsey, who lived at 10 Percy Road, Canning Town, but neither Sellers or Jeffries were firmly approached. With time running out Warren Mitchell was cast as Alf. The production of the pilot was indicative of the mayhem of making the series that would follow later in years. Speight proclaimed that Alf Ramsey was a bigot, and the audience would laugh at his prejudices, but critics were not convinced, arguing that the character was so foul-mouthed that any satirical impression was lost. On the first run through Warren Mitchell rubbished the script and a rewrite was ordered. Mitchell got his way and Speight altered some lines. In future years Speight would deliver scripts sometimes only hours before the first rehearsal with a clause in his BBC contract stating that not a single line could be altered. Indeed as the series progressed, Speight drank more and more alcohol and became harder and harder to work with, becoming a parody of Alf Garnett in so many ways.

Tom Sloan, the Head of Light Entertainment, was not impressed by the pilot. He objected to its rants against God, the Royal Family, the church and the state saying that it was very unbritish, but it got very good audiences and press reaction was very favourable. People found the sitcom funny. It was commissioned for a series by Michael Peacock, the Controller of BBC1.

With the World Cup due in 1966 the name of Alf Ramsey was changed to Alf Garnett to avoid any confusion with the famous footballer. The producer Dennis Main Wilson envisaged the show to a traditional sitcom about a family discussing topical issues, but the issues raised by Alf Garnett were not typical sitcom territory. Sid Abbott in Bless This House never talked about the faults of the Prime Minister! The first three series followed a semblance of structure with a comedic purpose to be achieved. But when the series was revived in 1972, plot seemed superfluous and Speight’s writing became more and more based around four people sitting in an armchair discussing life.

The early monochrome seasons were actually funny. Audiences loved them, the clean-up TV campaigner Mary Whitehouse hated them. Tom Sloan was delighted when the opportunity came to cancel the series in 1968. The unpredictable nature of Johnny Speight to work with had made production difficult and the pressure from Mary Whitehouse was beginning to undermind the reputation of the BBC. When Mary Whitehouse described the show as being “dirty, blasphemous and full of bad language” she was being complimentary! Those were its good points!

TO RUSSIA WITH ELTON

An ATV production. Transmission details are for the ATV midlands region. Duration: 75 minutes.

A musical extravaganza that is part pop happening, part voyage into the unknown — and total entertainment. Like some pre-Revolutionary Tsar, Elton John claimed Leningrad and Moscow as his own during a concert tour of the U.S.S.R. in May, 1979. This film shows exactly what it is like being on a concert tour, capturing the flavour of the concerts themselves and the times in between—the anxieties, the strain, the tension, the moments when frenzy is overtaken by hysteria.

A BetaSP tape, ex-2" was found in 2007, but has since been lost. A DVD survives. It contains:

1.) Sequences from TOTP '69 PT.1 (25/12/69):
Title sequence / Saville-Murray link to... / Lily The Pink - The Scaffold (final chorus only) / Murray and dancers link to... / Goodnight Midnight - Clodagh Rodgers (ends abruptly but virtually complete) /
Honky Tonk Women - Rolling Stones (starts / ends abruptly) / Dancer link to Something In The Air - Thunderclap Newman / Studio chatter and outro / end titles
2.) Sugar Sugar Sequences (?/?/69):
Various takes of dancers / audience dancing (prog. end cap at end)
Could be from Xmas '69 show but from the studio set and end cap it looks more like a regular edition (as mentioned in Bob Pratt tape loggings).
3.) Studio audience on balcony (waiting for cue to start dancing?).
4.) Green River - Creedence Clearwater Revival (Pan's People; 01.01.1970). Starts / ends abruptly.
5.) Wedding Bell Blues - Fifth Dimension (PAN'S PEOPLE; 22.01.1970): Starts / ends abruptly.
6.) Let's Work Together - Canned Heat (Audience Dancing; 12.02.1970): Starts / ends abruptly.
7.) Jackson Five - I Want You Back (Pan's People; 05.02, 12.02 or 05.03.1970): Starts / ends abruptly (although, again, there is a complete copy on the first disc you did me). "Digging The Dancing Queens" used a short clip from this but I don't think most people know it exists complete here. Does the BBC know?
8.) Elizabethan Reggae - Boris Gardner & The Dragonaires (Audience Dancing; 19.02.1970): Starts / ends abruptly and jump near start. Fragment of Tony Blackburn intro at start.
9.) Bridge Over Troubled Water - Simon & Garfunkel (TOTP Promo Film probably 12.03.1970 as promo shown also on subsequent edition but there is no telling if it was the same promo again):
First part of soundtrack has been re-dubbed by a spoof version of Je T'aime! Real soundtrack returns about a third of the way in.
10.) Brief fragments of Joe Dolan / Blue Mink (too brief to log properly).
11.) Piece of film set to Echoes by Pink Floyd (could be from Crystal Voyager, which used this track). Camera / editing credit at end is George Greenough.
12.) TOTP 29.03.1971 edition: large chunk of show but a few short parts are chopped out for some reason (exists complete anyway).
13.) Some brief titles to something ("Avro") with music.
14.) Sequences From Pop Goes The Sixties (31/12/69; whole show exists anyway) Gimme Shelter - Rolling Stones / Link / Anyone Who Had A Heart - Cilla Black Link / Apache - The Shadows (snippet only)
15.) Short film of a fashion show (?)
16.) Let's Work Together - Canned Heat (Audience Dancing) (12.02.1970; repeat of above but slightly less truncated).
17.) Brief film feature of a stripper / women's lib movement (not TOTP - commentary sounds a bit like "Nationwide" item but I doubt if THIS would get shown at 6pm!)
18.) Brief fragments of Pop Go The Sixties (again, not worth logging properly as it exists).
19.) Band playing as a girl stripper dances (again, not TOTP!)
20.) Lily The Pink - The Scaffold (25/12/69; a repeat of above chorus again but less abrupt cut in).
21.) Brief snippets from Rowan & Martin's Laugh-In.
22.) Sequences from TOTP '69 (25/12/69): A repeat of first sequence on the disc with items in slightly different order. Many of items cut in / out less harshly than first time around though.
23.) Elizabethan Reggae - Boris Gardner & The Dragonaires (Audience Dancing) (19.02.1970): A repeat but possibly more complete than earlier version, with less harsh cuts.
24.) Brief dancers routine (TOTP '69 - PT.1: 25/12/69).
25.) Doug Fisher singing / playing guitar (segment of "The Twelve Days Of Christmas") as stripper strips (as mentioned in my earlier e-mail - no idea what the show was or if it exists though).
26.) Sugar Sugar - The Archies (repeat of earlier 1969 sequences).
27.) Green River - Creedence Clearwater Revival (Pan's People; 1.01.1970): a repeat of earlier version but complete version here, with fragment of Jimmy Saville intro at start.
28.) Wedding Bell Blues - Fifth Dimension (22.01.1970): Again, a repeat but with less harsh cuts in / out.
29.) I Want You Back - Jackson Five (Pan's People; 05.02, 12.02 or 05.03.1970): as earlier but cuts in /out less abruptly.
30.) Bridge Over Troubled Water - Simon & Garfunkel (TOTP Promo Film; 12.03.1970). As above but cuts in / out less abruptly.
31.) Brief fragments of Joe Dolan / Blue Mink (repeat).
32.) Basketball Jones film segment.
33.) Happening for Lulu segment (as seen on OGWT with Bob Harris intro):
Voodoo Chile - Jimi Hendrix Experience / Lulu link / Hey Joe / Sunshine Of Your Love - Jimi Hendrix Experience

The BBC have the original studio recordings, because the tx tape was damaged, as well as the tx edit. There is also a spool logged as ‘dub of 1” spools from JCA’ which is probably a dub of a studio spool as it is 75 mins. but the broadcast version was actually 44’30”. When it was repeated in 1991 the tx was 44’42, but that might be accounted for by the “Perfect Christmas” generic titles.

THE TOYS THAT MADE CHRISTMAS

A BBC production for BBC 2. Transmission details are for BBC 2. Duration: 90 minutes.

Fed up with seeing games consoles and iPods unwrapped? Hankering for the days when toys were toys? Then watch this for a sharp pang of die-cast nostalgia. It's a portrait of old-school desirables such as Matchbox cars, Spirograph sets and Subbuteo. One contributor tells how his mother ("a game gal") started a gasket factory in her garden to help the war effort; to keep her workers' children happy she gave them bits of felt and place mats to play with, and right there was born the joy of Fuzzy Felt.

Executive producer Caroline Wright; produced by Suzannah Wander.

William S.Gilbert - of Gilbert and Sullivan - was not a success as a lawyer, earning only £25 in two years. But he made good use of his courtroom experience when he wrote the comic opera Trial by Jury in 1875. Based on a breach of promise case, Trial by Jury was the second production of the Gilbert and Sullivan partnership that went on to produce so many more immortal comic operas.

Granada's production is conducted by Charles Makerras, musical director of the English National Opera Company, and all the principals, Norma Burrwes, John Brecknock, Eric Shiling, Denis Dowling and Harold Blackburn have at some time sung with the English National Opera.

Libby Morris fell ill part way through the production of this season and was replaced by Nicolette Roeg. We are not entirely sure in which week this first happened, but it was definitely no later than 31.10.1956. As for the writing team, Fincham and Wyman were certainly credited in TV Times for at least one week longer than they should have been (on 21.11.1956) but it's possible that Speight and co were involved earlier than we list them.

THE UNKNOWN HANCOCK

A BBC production for BBC 2. made in association with Roger Hancock Ltd. Transmission details are for BBC 2. Duration: 90 minutes.

Cult sitcoms such as Hancock's Half-Hour sealed Tony Hancock's place in the comedic pantheon, as he came to represent the hopes, dreams and frustrations of the average man; but his private life was far from happy. This rounded and sympathetic portrait reveals an extraordinarily complex man, who was much more than the tragic comedian who committed suicide in 1968. With contributions from friends and colleagues.

Research Andrew Smith; music by The Bees; editor Caroline Wright; production executive Jez Nightingale; executive producers Karen Steyn and Tim Hancock; assistant producer Amy Fallon; associate producer Peter Scott; production manager Wendy Clarke; produced and directed by Ashtar Alkhirsan.

Main regular cast: Vic Reeves (Various Roles), Bob Mortimer (Various Roles), Fred Aylward (Les).

		Holding / Source
31.12.1990	Vic Reeves New Years Eve Big Night Out	1" / 1"S

Duration: 40 minutes.

Vic and Bob go first-footing with Alfred Hitchcock, a soppy old fish slice and many fierce dogs. They are joined by Les, the man with the stick and, of course, Graham Lister. There are also some living carpets, a focus on throats, two scarey ginger aroma-therapists and pop stars are subjected to trial by plum. So join them to see in 1991 in style.

Script consultant Paul Whitehouse; music by Sean Lyons, Kevin Powell and Morris Windsor; music director Andy Metcalfe; editor Adrian Martin; production team Kendall Anderson, Emile Maurice-Toussaint and Shruti Shah; designed by Pip Gardner; production manager Jenny Hay; series producer Alan Marke; produced and directed by Peter Orton.

With Michael Starke, Kim Wilde, Mark Wingett, Simon Bright, Emma Cafferty, Dudley Freeman, Charlie Higson, Mark Swan.

Made in association with Palace TV Productions.

		Holding / Source
27.12.1991	Vic Reeves Big Night Out on Tour	1" / 1"S

Duration: 91 minutes.

Music by Sean Lyons, Kevin Powell and Morris Windsor; music director Andy Metcalfe; editors Richard Owens and Guy Montgomery; executive producers Alan Marke and Robert Jones; produced by Jo Homewood.

With Emma Cafferty, Tommy Cockles, Dorian Crook, Mike Wattam, Wonderstuff.

Fred Aylward is credited only as "Les" in series one and the New Year's Eve special; only from series two onwards and in the pilot is he listed as Fred Aylward. The musicians, aside from the musical director, are invariably credited en masse as ‘The Vic Reeves Orchestra’. Punctuation fans will be disappointed to learn that at no point does an apostrophe appear in the programme's title, a fact particularly galling on the edition broadcast 31.12.1990.

Duration: 100 minutes.

During the Christmas of 1846, Albert introduces the court to Christmas Trees, and begins decorating the halls for the festive season. He invites Victoria's mother to Christmas, whose presence is not approved by Victoria. An African girl, Sarah, also arrives, as a gift from the King of Dahomey. Victoria tried her best to make Sarah feel welcome and less awkward within the palace, despite Albert's advice. King Leopold continues his attempts to marry Ernest to a princess from Germany, who originates from a wealthy family, but he continues his affair with the duchess Harriet, all the while he is forced to keep the secret of his illness from the duchess. Paget, still mourning Drummond after his death, eventually becomes engaged to Wilhelmina, the niece of the Duchess of Buccleuth. Penge, having hoped to make a considerable deal of money from a railway scheme connecting Leeds to Thirsk, comes to earn nothing from it. Nancy comes into an awkward inheritance from her uncle, which she later declines, and becomes engaged to Francatelli.

Written by Daisy Goodwin; directed by Jim Loach.

WHEN THE ANGELS... AND THE WISE MEN AND THE SHEPHERDS GREW UP

A BBC production for BBC 2. Transmission details are for BBC 2. Duration: 45 minutes.

. . . they became engineers and PhDs, milkmen and comptometer operators, marketing executives and train drivers. Kenneth More tells a story from the tiny stage where it began at Christmas 18 years ago. On that stage in the school hall at Uxendon Manor some 65 children took the curtain call at the end of their nativity play, and television viewers all over the country saw them on Christmas Eve. Now, those children come together again for the first time since then, as the audience for this year's play. But what has happened to them since they were the angels and the wise men and the shepherds of 18 years ago? Their triumphs and failures since that Christmas Eve, make up this Christmas Day story.

Directed by Sandra Wainwright.

WHO ON WHO? (RADIO)

A BBC production for BBC Radio 2. Transmission details are for BBC Radio 2. Duration: 60 minutes.

Did you know that the BBC had plans (quickly vetoed by Russell T Davies himself) to film a Harry Potter-esque spin-off that charted the Doctor's youthful exploits at the Time Lord Academy? Or that RTD was once approached to take part in Dancing on Ice? Well, there are plenty more entertaining titbits like this on offer as the Tardis's departing tenant, sorry Tennant, chats to the man who rebooted Saturday-night TV back in 2005 with his fresh take on a certain sci-fi favourite. Listen out also for the excerpts from Murray Gold's Who soundtrack - sounds ever-so stirring on radio.

24.12.2000 09:25 – 11:00 Cinderella in Boots DB / DBSWF

Cackle's Academy is staging a pantomime for the Christmas season, directed by Miss Crotchet. The pantomime is 'Cinderella', and is being staged in the Great Hall with the Grand Wizard in attendance. Mildred is playing Cinderella, but is suffering from stage fright just before the performance is due to start. Ethel wants to take over, stating that she knows all Mildred's lines, but Miss Crotchet won't allow it. Apprentice wizards Baz and Gaz are playing the Ugly Sisters, and Drusilla is cast as Prince Charming. Enid and Ethel are playing the cow and Miss Hardbroom, reluctantly, is the Fairy Godmother. Maud is playing Cinderella's wicked stepmother, and her character is dressed as Miss Hardbroom. Miss Drill and Charlie Blossom are the stage managers, but Charlie accidentally destroys Miss Hardbroom's pumpkin just before curtain-up. Ethel plans to force Mildred out of the show so she can take over as Cinderella, and asks for Drusilla's help. They give her some liquid from the magic generator to drink instead of water, causing her to become electrified. Miss Drill orders Ethel to take over as Cinderella, and Charlie finds some carrots to use instead of a pumpkin. Backstage, Charlie explains what Ethel and Drusilla did to Mildred, and Ruby reverses the effect before transforming Mildred into the Princess. When Drusilla refuses to co-operate, Enid magically swaps Charlie and Drusilla's clothes so Charlie can take over as the Prince. During the final ballroom scene, Charlie chooses Mildred over Ethel and the show is a success.

Written by Martin Riley; produced by Angela Beeching; directed by Andrew Morgan.

With Terrence Hardiman (Chief Wizard Hellibore), Nicholas Pepper (Blossom), Fine Time Fontayne (Ted Blossom), Emma Jayne Brown (Maud Moonshine), Clare Coulter (Miss Cackle), Kate Duchene (Miss Hardbroom), Polly James (Miss Crochet), Claire Porter (Miss Drill), Jessica Fox (Enid Nightshade), Holly Rivers (Drusilla Paddock), Harshna Brahmbhatt (Jadu Wali), Joanna Dyce (Ruby Cherrytree), Poppy Gaye (Griselda Blackwood), Emily Stride (Fenella Feverfew), Anthony Hamblin (Dragonsbane), Paul Child (Dragonsbane), Georgia Graham (Clarice Crow).
